

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania

1300 LOCUST STREET

PHILADELPHIA, February 22, 1910.

The Historical Society of Pennsylvania has recently completed and to a great extent equipped a commodious building of the most approved fireproof construction. This result has been accomplished through a liberal grant of money by the Commonwealth, a large bequest by Charles Janeway Stillé, LL. D., one of the late Presidents, and by generous contributions from its members and friends.

The Society proposes to celebrate the occupancy of its new hall by a formal opening with appropriate ceremonies on the afternoon of Wednesday, the sixth of April, 1910, at which time addresses will be delivered, the building be transferred by the Committee to the Society, and with its vast and valuable collections be thrown open to the examination of visitors. It is hoped that all of the members of the Society and their friends will be present and participate.

The ceremonies will be closed with a dinner on the evening of April seventh, to which each male member of the Society is invited to subscribe. The amount of the subscription has been fixed at fifteen dollars for each person. If you desire to be present at the dinner, please sign the enclosed card and return it with the amount of the
